JANUARY 2009

Note from Shelia...

Albert Einstein said, "We can't solve problems with the same kind of thinking we used when we created them." During Menita's workshop about Change, I was reminded again how true these words are. It is time for all of us to start 'walking our talk' by creating a level of thought that moves beyond social conscious dramas, that when observed in the moment, don't even belong to us. It is easy to say that we create our own reality. But, until we stop listening to our self talk that includes things like I am not enough, there is not enough, the world is going to the dogs, poor poor me, this doesn't work, when is it my turn and on and on and on, then our world will stay exactly the same. What would happen if each of us got up every morning and declared that the world was wonderful, that all we desire belongs to us, and that we are powerful masters of creation.

Would our world change?

My idea of life says, yes it would and it would happen in the twinkling of an eye. We have allowed ourselves to be captured in the negative field of lack for so long that we are afraid. This fear keeps us from moving to a different level of thought to create the world we desire to live in.

Problems belong to the past and the important thing about life is that we are given a new opportunity to change every moment by knowing that we can. Change is a powerful tool to rethink the dramas we have been playing in and it gives us a chance to write new scripts.

What would you like your new script to say? Why not start writing it right now.

Luminati has 3 very special journeys still available to Egypt this year. So please go to our website and check them out. It is never too early to register. The sooner you set your intention to participate, the quicker the universe will provide the time and funds. Plus, our savings program is a wonderful way to commit to your dreams of going to Egypt.

For those of you that live in the Phoenix area or planning on visiting, Menita is available for private channeling sessions. We charge $50 and ask that you bring your own recorders if you want to record the session. We can be reached at 480-488-3802 or toll free 888-488-1151.

Menita will help you change your 'self talk' and offer a more expanded level of thinking to create the life you truly deserve.

Our newsletter offers free advertising to those of you that have a gift you would like to share.

You will be highlighted in our Sharing Corner Section and an article about your gift will also appear. This month we highlight, The Galactic Center with Joni Patry. Joni is known around the world for her expertise as a Vedic Astrologer. We are honored to include in this newsletter her 2009 predictions. Please, send your article and information about the gift you wish to share as soon as possible so we can include it in our next newsletter.

Vedic Astrology Reading for January 2009

by Joni Patry of the Galactic Center in Dallas Texas

The new Moon is in Capricorn heralding in a new world order in our government. There is great hope alongside great fear. Never has the world been so on edge. Capricorn is the sign for government so there is no better time to plan the inauguration. The people are putting all their hopes in the new political regime. With so much pressure on the government there is a feeling of impatience.

The Saturn Uranus opposition is nearing its exact opposition again which can cause great shifts and extremes in the stock markets. Its exact opposition will hit February 5th. So a few weeks before this date expect the same extremes experienced in October and November 2008 with the economy and stock markets.

What is creating this mass extreme in the financial markets globally? It is the mass emotional fears and control through the media. Don't buy into this emotional drama. You will be contributing to this growing phenomena of pandemonium. This is a dangerous time in humanity. The only way out is within. It is time to form high-minded groups with the purpose of creating a better world.

I am staying away from the specifics of predicting assassinations for I strongly believe if the level of consciousness does not shift at this time the inevitable will be produced by the strong hate and delusions this country has created. It is a time of great loss. But it is also a time of great hope. Never has there been such a polarization with this massive level of emotion.

Keep Promises You Make to Yourself

Untitled image [1]

By Samone Myers

What are you willing to deny yourself? Nothing or lots of things, you may say. Most of us deny ourselves something everyday. We have a desire, no matter how large or small, and depending on the excuse-of-the-day, we deny ourselves. Typically is about lack of money. Often it is simply because we are not living in the moment and propel ourselves into the future. Have you ever asked, "What if I don't have enough to (fill in the blank)?" Or the times when we call up a pattern from the past and state, "Last time I did this, it ended in disaster. So I am not doing it again."

Anytime we do this, regardless whether it is a pattern or projecting ourselves into the future, it is denying ourselves a desire and not living in the moment. The answer to not doing this comes in part from learning how to change. Start by acknowledging that you have changes to make. Bring into your awareness small, manageable changes. Then, determine of those what intentions you have regarding the change.

An excellent exercise provided in a recent workshop on change given by Menita Ishmil and the 7th Level Group Composite [2] involved writing down 5 major changes we would like to make in our life. Then, we wrote 5 things about each of those changes and five more things about each of those.

What this exercise accomplished was to allow us to identify the changes we really desire. It also gets down to the nitty-gritty of what the desire truly is. For instance, let's say you first write down, "More money." Then, upon thinking about what that change means to you, it breaks down to the following five things:

1. Pay my bills
2. Have enough to send my son/daughter to college
3. Buy a new car
4. Go on that vacation I have been putting off
5. Renovate the kitchen

Continuing with this example, you would then write five things to each of the above. You may or not get through all of them. But, let's assume you complete the first one. It may look something like this:

- 1.1 Pay off the mortgage (or have enough to pay the mortgage)
- 1.2 Be able to afford the utility bills and other monthly expenses
- 1.3 Have enough for extra things that may come up, e.g. repairs
- 1.4 Provide food for my family and go out to eat at least once a week
- 1.5 Pay for an upcoming medical procedure

What this begins to show is individual desires or changes that sometimes are not necessarily reflected in the change that was originally stated. In this case "More money" does not adequately describe some of the desires listed above. Or it can limit the Universe in providing these changes in the desired state. For instance, a house could be given to you, but because you simply asked for more money, this may or may not happen because you have limited the way in which this desire can manifest.

Often because our society is engrained with patterns surrounding money and in the form of a particular currency, we are not allowing for the desired change to occur. In addition, because we live in a society that revolves around money in some form, many of the items above demonstrate that we are thinking outside of the moment. 1.1 through 1.5 have elements of "future"- to each.

A part of this exercise [3] is to be honest with yourself about each of these and trust that you will always have enough. Reflect back on moments where at the time it was happening something may have seemed dire. Yet, you see now that you are fine and 'later' the original desire did manifest. The bills got paid. You even moved from that house and live in a larger, more expensive one. Perhaps you traded in your old car before and bought a new car. What makes you think it won't happen again? Of course it will. But, will it in the way you desire?

At completion of this exercise you have a list of changes that you can begin to bring into your life and in the form that you desire. I view it as keeping promises you make to yourself. No one deserves it more than you. So go ahead. Look in the mirror and ask, "What am I denying myself?" Then, do this exercise and live your desires. Or as Mahatma Gandhi said, "Be the change you want to see in the world."

3. Following this part of the exercise, we were asked to identify one word or short phrase to sum up the feeling of the five changes. We then performed an effective technique for bringing it into the physical. This workshop will be given again. I highly recommend it for those serious about making changes in their life. Message from Mother Mary

Channeled through Gilly Armsby-Ward

What is change?

A happening that is perpetual.

A moment that alters in a second.

A chaotic occurrence that knows it is alive,
by the creative outpourings of a future to be lived.

All is in flux, all-moving to the rhythm of the Cosmos.

Will you consciously step into it,
or be thrown about in an ocean of unawareness of creation.

Who are you and what are you?

Who do you want to be and what do you want to be?

Change

What does your heart cry out for?

What choice will you make today?

The same as yesterday.

Or a creative thought and act that enhances your Soul.

That empowers you towards the next moment.

Ecstatic that your action gave you exactly what you wanted.

So embrace change as a reality,
In a world of energies fighting for expression.
But personalize and mould to your highest potential, watching the fluctuations of the physical, but aware of the arrow-straight, synchronicity of Spirit.

Be still, and be the most potent,
Be aware, and be the most knowing,
Be active, and be the most useful,
Be you, and be the sister of all.

Join in the Dance.

Mary

Pyramids Help Maintain Planetary Life

Excerpt from the December 21, 2008 Matthew Message

"The evenly distributed energy of the pyramids permits the flow of energy from inner Earth out into the atmosphere and its return to the planet, like the cycle of expansion and contraction of breathing keeps your bodies alive. These structures are a province of third density worlds because they help maintain planetary life, whereas the vibrations in higher planes keep the energy flowing without external assistance. However, as part of energy's 'building blocks,' pyramidal shapes in solid or ephemeral usage are aspects of what you call sacred geometry, and people who are sensitive to energy fluctuations are especially drawn to pyramids and objects in that form."

Egyptian Museum of Turin

The Egyptian Museum of Turin (the second in the world after the Cairo Museum) was established in 1824, although the University of Turin already owned an important collection of Egyptian material. In the early 19th century, Carlo Felice, influenced by the interest in Egyptian culture which had been spreading all over Europe following Napoleon's campaigns in Egypt, acquired a substantial number of the finds collected by the Piedmontese Bernardino Drovetti, French consul general in Egypt. Between 1903 and 1920 the Italian Archaeological Mission launched a number of excavation campaigns along the Nile, thus acquiring additional material; new pieces were also added to the museum between 1930 and 1969. In 1988 the museum was entirely renovated.

Note: The Egyptian Museum of Turin in Italy has in its possession an ancient flywheel found at Sakkara. The photo of the ancient flywheel (above left) compared to a 20th century one (above right) used in aviation manufacturing reveals that they are almost identical. Once this obvious comparison was made, the museum curator had it removed from public display.

Egypt Discovers New Archaeological Site of Middle Kingdom

CAIRO, Jan. 13, 2009 (Xinhua) -- The Egyptian antiquities authority said Tuesday a new archaeological site of ancient Egypt dates back some 4,000 years was found northeast of Cairo. The archaeological site of the Middle Kingdom, or Central State, was unearthed in the Ein el Sokhna resort, some 120 km northeast of Cairo. The site was found by a joint Egyptian-French archaeological mission, adding nine storehouses and a rectangular building containing an ancient chamber were unearthed there. Experts believe that the Middle Kingdom is an era of prosperity in ancient Egypt, leaving numerous heritages that spread across Egypt, including the southern city of Luxor and Fayoum.

Egypt Takes Lead in Middle Eastern Renewable Energy

Egyptian Electricity and Energy Minister Speaks at World Future Energy Summit;
Wind Farms Will Produce One-Fifth of Country's 2020 Energy Needs

Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates: The Egyptian energy sector is on track to become the leader in Middle Eastern renewable energy initiatives, states one of Egypt's high-ranking government officials.

"Wind farms clustered in the Saidi area of Egypt will employ thousands and produce 20 percent of the country's diversified energy needs by 2020," said HE Dr. Hassan Younes, Egyptian Minister of Electricity and Energy at this week's World Future Energy Summit in Abu Dhabi.

King Tut's Father ID'd in Stone Inscription

Rossella Lorenzi, Discovery News

Dec. 17, 2008 -- An inscribed limestone block might have solved one of history's greatest mysteries -- who fathered the boy pharaoh King Tut. "We can now say that Tutankhamun was the child of Akhenaten," Zahi Hawass, Chief of Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities, told Discovery News. The finding offers evidence against another leading theory that King Tut was sired by the minor king Smenkhkare. Hawass discovered the missing part of a broken limestone block a few months ago in a storeroom at el Ashmunein, a village on the west bank of the Nile some 150 miles south of Cairo. Once reassembled, the slab has become "an accurate piece of evidence that proves Tut lived in el Amarna with Akhenaten and he married his wife, Ankhesenamun," while living in el Amarna, Hawass said.

Travel Tip

What would you do...?

What would happen if you lost your purse, wallet or document holder while traveling? It is always wise to have a copy of important papers with you. Here is another idea. Give yourself a backup copy of your documents that is always available. Scan and send an email to yourself of your travel documents such as your passport, traveler cheques, ATM cards, pins, tickets, travel insurance, drivers license, etc. Then, if you need them, you can get them from public internet access in your hotel or where ever the Internet is available.
